Honogong, December 9rt. 1873.

WE recently had occasion to allude to the undesirableness of, in some instances, making appointments to the offices in this Colony From home; and, if we are to take the telegram which we published yesterday, with reference to the appointment of Mr. Bramston. as Attorney-General, there would seem to be still further cause for raising this objection. It would, of course, be too unreasonable for residents in Crown Colonies to imagine that these possessions will not be looked upon at home as very appropriate places to get appointments for gentlemen, whose chief qualification for official posts in them, is that they are unfitted to hold them anywhere else; but there are some posts in which local experience is so peculiarly requisite that it might be thought that the Home Government in regard to them; and appoint some one who really knows something about the duties;

The post of Attorney-General, in this Colony, is one peculiarly of this description; and it has somewhat taken the public by surprise to find that the appointment has been given to a gentleman who knows nothing whatever of Hongkong, and that the present Acting Attorney-General, Mr. HAXL-LAR, who is now filling the post for the second time, is passed over. There is probably no position in the Colony, even in- iv of the complainant, from No. 40, Central cluding that of the Governon himself, which Market. involves more labour, or which more requires a man well acquainted with local law and local matters. Almost everything of importance bus to be referred in one form or ano ther to the Attorney-General; and to place trail a new arrival in that post would not be doing justice to a man even of the very highest ability. But in the present instance, the gentleman chosen has certainly not had the advantage of any great experience, or he would be occupying some more important land Bar seems to be a complete by word, who saves his money.

Those who cannot get on at Melbourne, try their-luck at Sydney, and those who fail in Sydney, go on to Queensland. This seems, therefore, an extraordinary place from which to choose an Attorney-General for Hongkong, where questions of much difficulty and importance are constantly arising, and where a man who has not been resident in the place must have everything to learn on his arrival. In some posts, the absence of knowledge of details us to Ordinances, &c., would not be of so much importance, as the assistance of others might be relied upon. Even a Judge would not be so much at a loss as an Attorney-General, as counsel would generally call his attention to the Ordinances bearing upon put in.] any case before him; but to expect a newlyto the latter post, is certainly to expect men Hue, approved of by the King. He discussed and Kwanquin. They were very during and course, they are (laughter.) These to make bricks without straw.

We cannot, therefore, but think the Home Government have acted with very little consideration for the true interests of the Colony in this appointment. The fact that local experience and knowledge are requisits here could hardly have escaped their knowledge, cerned, assuredly no other consideration interests of the Colony arcofsmallimportance, as compared with the opportunities which it affords them of dispensing patronage; but stated on a previous occasion of an anthat if gentlemen are passed over the Home Government after twice-filling posts of importance as acting officials, the For particulars, apply to the SPANISH PRO. THEFT. Cheong a-hing, a servant to the Portugue Club, charged one Wai-a-wong, with stealing a cloth jacket from the Club.

Complainent said the defendant was a friend of the old compradore, and on Friday last h came to visit, and slept in the Club that night. Next morning, at 8 a.m., the defendant was missing, also the coat. He went in search, and found the defendant in Taipingshan, when accusing the defendant, he acknowledged the their and produced a pawn-ticket, having pawned the jacket for $1.50. Defendant said he di it to redeem his own-clothes. - Defendant said his father would have no

DISOBEDIENT SERVANTS. Lieut, Vaugham, of the Royal Artillery, charged his two chair-coolies with neglecting their duty on several occasions, after it being explained to them what was required of them. Complainant said on Saturday no was in bed with fever, and whilst his bo was doing their work, he requested the coolies to remain on the staircase and verandab, to be in hearing in case he required anything. Instead of their attending to this, they took the advantage of his being ill and went away, not once, but several times, after being told through his boy to remain.

This was corroborated by the complainant boy, and defendants were fined $1 each. Lee-a-chew, a travelling hawker in all sorts of articles, charged a coolie named Woog-a-hoong with stealing out of his bushet a box of new stockings (one dozen), whilst be was passing up Gongh street-steps, on Sunday afternoon. Defendant said he picked them up on the ground; probably the complainant had dropped

European named Collin Ware, with refusing to pay chair hire on Sunday morning. A boat woman named Frong-a-yow, also charged the defendant with passing on her a ad dollar, at 6 p.m. on Saturday, and refusing to change it, or pay her in any other coin. Defendant denied having given the bud dollar, and began a long tale in reference to how the case came in hand, but Inspector Grimes asserted defendant was more or less the worse for His Worship said that he must have given the had dollar, though it was unknown to him that it was bad. Defendant was fined $1; and ordered to pay would be disposed to give up their privilege 20 cents to chair, and 25 cents to bout, and the bad dollar to be confiscated.

- A CANNIBAL. Tang-a-mocy, a married woman, charged dirty, hungry-looking Chinese, named Wong-asow, with biting her finger, whilst in a row between a lot of women in Taipingsban. His Worship considering the complainant (who was equally as dirty) as bad as the defendant, discharged the case, giving both a caution.

On this occasion he was himself absent, but he had sent his address to be read by the Duke of St. Albans to the students; and it proved to contain something more than the conventional sentences usually FLOWERS, spoken to young folks who have won prizes. We are pleased to observe that the students themselves showed their good sense in heartily cheering this address, although it hit them hard here and there. "You think you are going to do better things," says this very frank monitor, "each of you, than Titian or Phidias; write better than Virgil; think more wisely than Solomon. My good young people, this is quite pre-eminently the foolishest—perhaps almost the barmfullest-potion that could possibly be put into your empty little eggshells of heads. LACE. There is not one in a million of you who can ever be great in anything. To be greater than the greatest that have been is permitted, perhaps, to no man in Europe in the course of two or three centuries. But because you cannot be Handyl, and Mczart, is it any reason way you should not learn to sing 'God save the Queen' opera, is it any reason that she should not learn to play a jig for her brothers and slaters in good time, or a soft little tune for her tired mother, or that she should not sing to please herself, among the dow, on a May morning?" Indeed, the virtues of humility, of reverence for] the work of great men, of an increasing love for The above GOODS have been carefully selected and wonder over the marvels of nature—these were the objects which Mr. Ruskin placed before the Mansfield pupils as worthy of their keenest and constant endcavour. They were to test their progress in art by the greater merit they could perceive in the masterpieces of the world. They were to build their hopes of doing some that they never would do it as well as it bad been done by others. GUILD'S SIGNAL (By Bret Harfe, in "An Episode of Fiddle

William Guild was engineer of the train, which on the 19th of April, plunged into Meadow Brooks on the line of the Stonington and Providence Railroad. It was his custom, as often as he passed his home, to whistle an "all's well" to his wife. He was found, after the disaster, dead, with his hand on the throttle-value of his ongine. Two low whis, les, quaint and clear, "

That was the signal the engineer-That was the signed that Guild, 'tis said-Gave to his wife at Providence. As through the sleeping town, and thence, Out in the night,

On to the light, Down past the firms, lying white, he sped ! As a husband's greeting, sount, no doubt, Yet to the woman looking out, Watching and waiting, no secounde, Love song or midnicht Foundelay · Said what that whistle scened to say : "To my trust true,"

Working or waiting, good night!" it said. Brisk young bagmen, tourists line, Old commuters along the line. Brakeman and porters glanced ahead, Smiled as the signal, sharp, intense,

So love to you!

" Nothing amies-Nothing !-- it is Only Guild calling his wife," they said. Summer and Winter, the old refrain-Rang-o'er the bill we of ripening grain, Pierced through the budding boughs o'erhead, Flow down the track when the red leaves burned Like living cods from the engine spurned;

Sang as it flow: "To our trust true, First of all, duty. Good night!" it said. And then, one night, it was lightd no more From Szonington over Rhode Island shore, And the folk in Providence smiled and said, As they turned in their beds, "The engineer Has once forgotten his midnight cheer." One only knew,

To his trust_true, Guild lay under his engine, dead. NATURE'S LEVELLERS

A few yards beyond is the Chapeau, a projecting mass of rock, near which is a small châlet for refreshments. Heré was assembled a noisy, heterogeneous throng of tourists, of both sexes and all nations, laughing and talking at the top of their voices, and shouting for wine, beer, cognac, cheese, cutlets, steaks, potatoes, and what not, all of which commodities the luckless garcon, who was nover allowed a moment's pause, produced with the most hindable celerity. Not many years have elapsed since Englishmen dismissed from their minds the notion that their dead bodies should be interred in churchyards within the city in which they dwelt. Sanitary conditions suggested extramural places of deposit. and picturesque cometeries became a furore, greatly to the advantage of investors in that description of landed property and thesculptors of storied urns and monumental busts. There was a finer field opened to epitable by this arrangement, and Hervey's "Meditations" passed through many new editions; for sorrowing survivors adopted the fashion of paying visits to the monuments of the departed, and, in imitation of the French, who had rendered Pere-la-Chaise | pany at ourrent rates, subject to a discount of a garden of corpses, placed immortelles on the broken columns, or deposited them on the flat indices to the locality of the mouldering corruption. But inasmuch as healthful considerations led to the alteration in the denositories of the dead in Eugland, a ques tion has naturally arisen—but approached with hositation because it touches ancient prejudices and human affections--whether it might not be advisable to go a step further and adopt a more summary and wholesome method of annihilating mortal remains. The universality of the practice of rendering our hodies food for worms cannot be pleaded in resistance of other forms of destruction, for we see every day of our lives how frequently accidents dispose of our helpless frames Shipwrocks, drownings, deaths at sea, coalmine and other explosions, railway collisions. fires, hospital dissections, carry off thousands of Christians who had expected that, at some time or other, they would have lain in a "narraw cell" in juxtaposition with their forefathers. A RUINED-TOWN. BADEN BADEN WITHOUT THE GAMING

. (From the London Hour.) The various opinions with respect to the ffect of the abolition of the gaming tables may now be considered settled. The town is literally ruined, in proof of which may be mentioned the fact that up to the present date only 20,000 people have visited the place this year, thus showing a falling off of 50,000, as last season there were no less than 70,000 visitors. The upper classes of the pretty but now dull little place, and it is left entirely to the middle-classes of Germany. The Badeblatt is now printed entirely in German, the French columns being abolished. The race programmes are no longer printed in French; indeed everything is Germanized. The hotel-keepers and tradesmen who have hoarded sup their profits from excessively high charges, will now have to begin to live on their capital or desert their homes. They are on the horns of a dilemma, as well as the proprietors of property. Rents will have to come down, or the tenants must leave, as is very certain the poor but respectable portion of the visitors will not pay for their accommodation at anything like the high charges which have been inflicted on the English and other aristocracy. Since the abolition of the tables the almost universal prediction that gamblers would be superseded that the townspeople are entertaining gloomy forebodings in regard to the future, and most of them would give half their savings if the Government would again allow the tables They can more readily appreciate the liberality of the Benazet-Dupressoir dynasty, who were really the Grand Dukes of Baden. In the winter months the poor will no longer be able to receive generous assistance from M.
